10:15 – 11:15 am	The Science and Art of Property Risk Engineering Property risk engineering and loss control can be complex. Often forgot-this is both a science and an art. This is especially true when both loss prevention and loss reduction programs are implemented as part of risk engineering efforts. And both are critical - especially when the associated human factor is fully recognized. This will be discussed with particular importance in today’s environment supported by some well-known historical events and commentary.
Speaker	Bruce Clarke AIG
11:15 – 12:15 pm	Addressing the Difference Between London Insurers and the US Market for Handling Property and Energy Claims Differences arise in many areas, including the manner of reporting on claims (with the involvement of the Broker or not), the use and management of experts including lawyers, the concerns and handling of Reservations of Rights, White Waivers and general cultural issues. This session will address these subjects from both the US and London perspectives and how to make claims run more smoothly and efficiently.
